SECTION VII: HYPOTHETICAL CASE (35%)

Ato Zemene Bashaw and W/ro Simegnush Befekadu grew up in Addis Ababa. As they had been classmates from elementary school all the way to university, they eventually decided to be life partners. Following their graduation from University in 1970 E.C, they both went to visit their grandparents in Welkite (SNNP Region) to celebrate “Meskel”. Their respective family and relatives who already knew the relationship arranged a ceremony and declared them “married” in accordance with the custom of the place. Although they immediately returned to Addis, they had never gone through further procedures.

Zemene and Simegnush had been enjoying a peaceful life until when Simegnush gave birth to a baby boy, Tariku about four months after their return from Welkite to Addis. While Zemene was not surprised initially, he gradually became very curious about the baby as the latter resembles neither Zemene nor anyone from his family. Although this doubt has shadowed their relationship, they continued living together for over three decades during which they built a grand villa and supermarket in Addis Ababa. In fact, Ato Zemene was such a lucky guy that five years ago he won a lottery of 5 million birr, only by spending 5 birr from his salary. With that money he built a 5 star hotel in Addis. But Zemene always embarrasses Simegnush alleging that he doesn't father Tariku. About three months ago, Simegnush filed a divorce petition. Pending the divorce petition, the court ordered Zemene to temporarily leave the common home. Tariku who was only nine chose to stay with his mother claiming that Zemene does not love him. Ato Zemene was disappointed and decided to file an action to disown Tariku.

Meanwhile, Zemene sustained a serious injury in a car accident and few days later he passed away. While he was hospitalized he wrote a Will which partly provides that, “I never had a legally binding marriage with Simegnush and hence we never had a common property with her; let my elder sister Tizita take 90% of my estate; I have given the supermarket to my brother Tedla; let my parents take care of my son Bekalu, who was born to Wro Zinash before I got married to Wro Simegnush.” No mention was made of Tariku, though. When Zemene's succession opened, Simegnush was surprised with the Will not only because she was denied a status of wife but also her minor son (Tariku) was excluded from the inheritance and a ‘stranger’ (Bekalu) was named as another son of Ato Zemene.

Questions

1. Wro Simegnush wonders as to whether she can challenge the validity of the Will left by Ato Zemene on behalf of Tariku and herself. Please give her a well considered legal advice (20 %).
2. Is Bekalu entitled to the succession of Ato Zemene? Why/ Why not? If yes, to what extent (10%)?
3. Assuming that Ato Zemene died intestate, briefly state the possible beneficiaries of Zemene's estate and their respective share (portion) (5%).
